

What Color is Your Water?

Another exciting day has come to Natural Action Technologies doorstep.

NAT has combined its structured water technology with the understanding of Colored Light Therapy for a colorful new day in Structured Water energetics.

The highly successful and well-loved NAT portable unit, is now available in green and blue, two of the 12 therapeutic colors of the Dinshah Spectrochrome chart. Yellow and magenta are scheduled to appear soon.

If you have never heard of Dinshah Spectrochrome, you owe it to yourself to understand its value.

Colored Light therapy was introduced in America in the 1920s. Dinshah Ghadiali of India brought it forth to the general public, doctors, dentists, and practitioners of all disciplines to show the healing abilities and physiological benefits of 12 colored light spectrums and their health-producing frequencies.

It was revered and employed as a valuable therapy in Philadelphia hospitals in the 1920s by Dr. Monica Baldwin, and even before that by Dr. Edwin Babbitt.

In his books, journals, and encyclopedias of these early 1900s. Dinshah brought forth new health benefits and understandings to the American people. Colored Light Therapy was free, effective, and fascinating!

In simple terms, colored light therapy has been a traditional form of medicine. It has certainly been around longer than the 1920s, going back thousands of years at least to the understanding of colors in Five Element Oriental medicine.

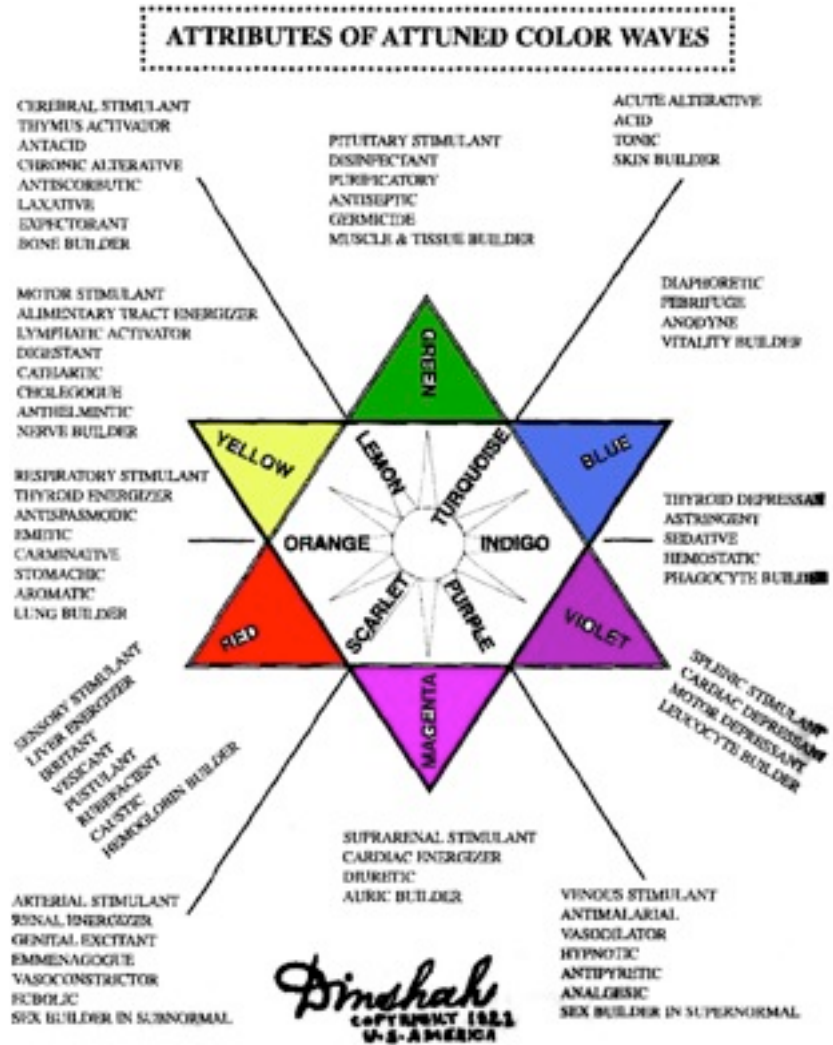

Dinshah faced incredible amounts of dissension and resistance in sharing the health benefits of Colored Light Therapy.

His research lab in New Jersey was burnt to the ground and equipment destroyed by FDA agents in 1940s, at great loss to everyone interested in health.

However Dinshah's understandings of colored light therapy remained effective to this day. It is still carried out through his sons' work and the Dinshah Health Society.

The knowledge is simple: as natural light is passed through colors, various frequencies are generated that create healthful physiological effects for the human body, without any proven harm.

Notice the physiologic effects for each color shown in Dinshah's Spectrochrome chart.

With the thought of these health-giving frequencies in mind, Natural Action decided to conjoin its special flowform technology with the understandings of Dinshah's color therapy. The outer shells have now been attuned with the Dinshah Color frequencies in mind.

There have already been amazing benefits from the marriage of these two modalities. Now these are becoming available to fans of Structured Water units in the colored NAT Portable. The NAT Portable, already a household water energizing tool for people around the world, has received an upgrade with the new look of translucent blue and now green outer shells. This offers users new opportunities and adventures from the well-loved NAT Portable.

Lets take a look at what these are!

1. Structured Water Empowered with Color Tonation

Dinshah and others knew back in the 1920s, they could use the sun's natural energy in coordination with specific color frequencies attuned in the water to heal the body from within. These tonations were mentioned in many of Dinshah's books.

How do you tonate water?

It behooves anyone to use this simple understanding. Put a cork in the bottom of the colored NAT Portable of choice. Fill it with water. Corking the top is also suggested to leave dust, bugs, etc out. Then simply put it out in the sun for 20-60 minutes. The water now takes on the energy of that color, and all it functional effects.

As you can read from the Spectrochrome Chart, there are many of them. For example, perhaps you need a water with cooling effect to reduce fever or heat toxins. Use the blue colored portable to tonate the water for that function. Or, perhaps you are looking for a water with antibacterial properties, use the green-colored NAT Portable to tonate the water green for all its healthful effects. With the structured water already there, the effects seem amplified. We are on a fascinating quest to find out all the benefits that may be compounding from this combination of light and NAT flowform energetics.

These understandings have always provoked a simple question: What color is your water?

Now, you can "color" your water with energy and drink it structured too.

2. Looking through your Portable

The translucent body of the colored NAT Portables provides users a way to now see the whole flowform in one view. Testing with this “flowform view” shows instantaneous effect with the body functioning more adeptly as the brain begins to regulate with the first view through to the other side. As Clayton joked when we looked at this surprisingly salubrious effect, “Well, if they won’t drink the water, perhaps we can at least get them to look thru it!”

This is no small effect. If one is in a stuck brain regulation, it just takes one look up through the side of the unit into the sun, and garner one breath in and out. Presto chango! The brain switches out of malfunction into “Game On!...First and Ten!”

We already know that when this happens there is a stress-reducing effect in the body. As to how much, it will take time to see through various testing procedures. But already, we see people settling into a better demeanor from this simple 6 second look.

3. But Wait There's More...Look Deeper

It's not enough to just see the side of the Portable. One must take two Portables in their mitts and appreciate a generous look through the funnel sides of the Portables. This allows one to see the glow of the colors and the energetics of the flowform. In this way, there is a strengthening of the body through the optic pathways.

Already we have seen this simple technique strengthen weak organ systems in the body in just a minute. We have seen it address stressed emotional states and traumas for the immediate betterment of the viewer. Fanatics will soon be keeping two NAT Portables next to their bed just to wake up to a good start each day.

It might be only a month or two until NAT customers demand at least yellow, green, blue, and magenta NAT Portables to have the various important Spectrochrome color frequencies at hand and gain their benefits.

Indeed, the future looks bright with color at Natural Action Technologies.
